Event Description:

Join us to learn about one health system's experience implementing remote patient monitoring (RPM). This approach has helped to provide a safe transition of care for patients suspected of having COVID (PUI) and COVID positive patients who were discharged from the ED. When properly implemented, remote patient monitoring prevents avoidable readmissions. Together, we will learn about the elements of an effective RPM program used during COVID and consider the potential for future RPM use in helping to manage patients with chronic diseases.

Following this session, you will be able to assess how remote patient monitoring may benefit your organization and know how to take the first steps towards implementation.

1. Define what remote patient monitoring is and how it is used.
2. Identify benefits for both patients and health care systems of using remote patient monitoring.

Please invite your friends, colleagues, and loved ones to attend this event with you to learn together and support each other.
