You're Invited to Participate in the QI / QAPI Learning Series

Bridge the Gap from Theory to Practice

Series Begins on Wednesday, July 13, 2022
3 p.m. ET | 2 p.m. CT | 1 p.m. MT | 12 p.m. PT

Attendees to the first session will automatically be enrolled in the 12-week series. You must register to attend the July 13th session to attend the full series.

Are you new or someone you know new to a quality improvement (QI) role, considering a role in QI or interested in deepening your understanding of the foundations of QI?

Alliant Health Solutions invites you to participate in a 12-week series of learning and coaching sessions focused on bridging the gap between QI theory and effective improvement strategies to improve safety and healthcare outcomes. The series is designed for individuals new to their role as quality leaders in hospitals, nursing homes or home health agencies, as well as individuals looking for a QI skills update.

Coaching calls will focus on supporting the application of the QI theory to organizational operations. Participants will actively engage in shared learning and relationship building with quality improvement peers across the healthcare continuum.

Learning Objectives:

1. Learn how to effectively lead and align quality and performance improvement activities with organizational strategic goals.
2. Learn how to establish a culture of safety to identify, develop and implement sustainable performance and process improvement initiatives.
3. Identify methods to engage teams in the use of data for decision making and to tell a visual story of your performance improvement journey.
4. Identify actions to build upon current knowledge and practice skills as a foundation for CPHQ certification.
